

FRAMEWORK MEDIA

Refund & Cancellation Policy

Website document

Last updated: 08 August 2026

This policy explains how cancellations, rescheduling, refunds, and disputed payments are handled across Framework Media's Strategy, Execution, and Partnership services. It is written to be fair and commercially reasonable to both Framework Media and its clients, and forms part of our Terms & Conditions.

1. General Principles

Because our services involve professional time, strategic thinking, and creative work — much of which is committed before a final deliverable is produced — refunds are assessed based on the amount of work already carried out, not simply on client satisfaction with the outcome. This policy sets out how that assessment works for each type of engagement.

2. Productised Services

This covers fixed-scope services such as Growth Strategy, Content Audits, YouTube Audits, YouTube Strategy, Personal Brand Strategy, Scriptwriting, Editing, Carousel Design, Thumbnail Design, Content Planning, and Content Ideation.

Before work begins. If you cancel before Framework Media has started work on your project, you're entitled to a full refund, less any payment processing fees already incurred by Framework Media on the transaction.

After work has started. Once work has commenced, payment covers the time, research, and resources already committed. Refunds after work has started are considered on a case-by-case basis, may be partial, and are not guaranteed. As a general guide: cancelling after less than 25% of the scoped work is complete may be eligible for a partial refund at Framework Media's discretion; cancelling after 25% or more of the work is complete is generally not eligible for a refund, though outstanding deliverables will not be invoiced further.

Completed deliverables. Deliverables that have been finished and sent to the client (e.g. a delivered strategy document, a delivered edit, a delivered script) are considered fulfilled and are non-refundable, whether or not the client goes on to use them.

Client-requested cancellation. You may cancel a project at any time by notifying us in writing. Any work completed up to that point will be invoiced (or retained from an existing payment) at our standard rate, calculated pro-rata against the agreed project fee.

Missing information or assets. Many of our services depend on you providing timely information, brand assets, or footage. If required materials are not provided within a reasonable period (typically 14 days) of a request, we reserve the right to pause the project, apply a corresponding delay to the delivery timeline, or close the project without a refund for work already completed.

Missed deadlines caused by the client. Delivery timelines assume timely feedback and approvals from you. Delays caused by late feedback, missing assets, or unresponsiveness may extend the delivery date and do not entitle you to a refund or discount.

Revisions. Each productised service includes an agreed number of revision rounds, confirmed at kickoff, in your proposal, or on the relevant onboarding form. Revisions beyond this allowance may be quoted and invoiced separately before being carried out.

Quality-related concerns. If you're unhappy with a delivered piece of work for reasons connected to quality rather than scope (for example, it doesn't reflect the brief), please raise this in writing within 7 days of delivery so we can review it.

Where Framework Media agrees the work did not meet the agreed brief, we will revise it at no additional cost, in preference to a refund, unless a fix is not reasonably possible.

Service-specific exceptions. Certain services — such as strategy documents, audits, and scripts — are considered delivered once the final file has been sent, even if the client chooses not to act on the recommendations. These are non-refundable once delivered, as the professional analysis and recommendation has already been completed.

3. Strategy Sessions

- Cancellation: Sessions cancelled more than 48 hours before the scheduled time are eligible for a full refund or a free reschedule, at the client's choice.
- Rescheduling: You may reschedule once at no charge, provided you give at least 24 hours' notice. Further reschedules may incur an admin fee or forfeiture of the session, at Framework Media's discretion.
- No-shows: If you do not attend a scheduled session without notice, the session is forfeited and is not refundable.
- Late arrival: Sessions will still end at the originally scheduled time; late arrival reduces the time available but does not extend the session length or entitle you to a refund or partial refund.
- Framework Media cancellations: If Framework Media needs to cancel or reschedule a session, we will offer the client a full refund or a free reschedule to a mutually convenient time.

4. Retainer Services

This covers Content Department and Growth Partner engagements.

Notice period. Either party may cancel an ongoing retainer with 30 days' written notice, unless a different notice period is set out in the signed Retainer Agreement.

Cancellation. Retainers continue, and remain payable, through the full notice period, regardless of whether the client chooses to continue actively using the service during that time. Work already scoped or in progress during the notice period will be completed or handed over in its current state.

Outstanding invoices. Any outstanding invoices remain payable regardless of cancellation and must be settled before final files, working documents, or account access are handed over.

Work already completed. Deliverables completed and paid for prior to cancellation remain the client's property, in line with our Client Content & Intellectual Property Policy.

Partial months. Retainer fees are not prorated for partial months unless otherwise agreed in writing. If a retainer is cancelled mid-cycle, the current month's fee remains payable in full.

Minimum commitment periods. Where a retainer includes an agreed minimum commitment period (as set out in the signed Retainer Agreement), cancellation before the end of that period may still require payment of the remaining committed months, unless the cancellation is due to Framework Media's material breach.

Contract termination. Either party may terminate a retainer immediately, without serving the standard notice period, in the event of a material breach (such as non-payment, or a serious failure to deliver agreed work) that is not corrected within 7 days of written notice.

5. Disputed Charges and Chargebacks

If you believe a charge was made in error, please contact us first at hello@frameworkmedia.co.za so we can investigate and resolve the issue directly — this is almost always faster than a bank or card chargeback process. Initiating a chargeback for a service that has already been delivered as agreed, without first raising the issue with us, may result in the suspension of future services.

6. Currency and International Payments

Where fees are charged in a currency other than South African Rand, refunds (where applicable) will be issued in the original currency and amount charged. Framework Media is not responsible for currency conversion differences, international transaction fees, or exchange rate fluctuations applied by your bank or card provider.

7. Circumstances Beyond Our Control

Where Framework Media is unable to deliver a service due to circumstances beyond its reasonable control (illness, load-shedding, platform outages, or other force majeure events as described in our Terms & Conditions), we will work with the client in good faith to reschedule delivery. Refunds in these circumstances are considered case by case.

8. How to Request a Cancellation or Refund

Send a written request to hello@frameworkmedia.co.za including your name, the service in question, and the reason for your request. We aim to acknowledge all requests within 3 business days and resolve them within 14 days.
